Hi Lexi,
Just want to put this request on your radar for now and I'll add it to our 1:1 agenda next week to discuss scoping. In short, the LS team is asking for an additional field to be added to the Salesforce-Asana integration for syncing.

Hi Ben,
Thanks for this additional info. Since this update will require an update to the custom Salesforce integration, I will discuss with Lexi and Jenna to scope this out and confirm a potential timeline for getting it through. I'll share an update with this group when I have one.

While we're digging in there to update the integration, while the door is open, are there any other Salesforce Opportunity fields @DeLisser, Ayana or @Copeland, Justin that you've been thinking about that would be helpful to add to the sync into Asana as well? This would be a good opportunity to tackle any others all at once for efficiency, if you've been thinking about any other fields.

Thanks,
Alissa

Hi Alissa,

Thank you for walking through this, it is helpful!

When the Participation Loan field in Salesforce is "Yes", NFF can be with the Lead Lender (If we sold a participation in the loan to another lender) or a Participant (if we purchased a portion of the loan from another lender). This information is captured in the "Participation Type" field on the Salesforce Opportunity which shows up when the Participation Loan field is marked as yes:

Essentially the logic looks something like this:

If "Participation Loan" is No, then Participation Type (Formula) is "NFF Lead/No Participation",

If "Participation Loan" is Yes AND Participation Type (From Salesforce) is "Sold", then Participation Type (Formula) is "NFF Lead/No Participation"

If "Participation Loan" is Yes AND Participation Type (From Salesforce) is "Purchased", then Participation Type (Formula) is "NFF Participant".

I realize this adds another data point to the workflow, so I'm happy to brainstorm alternatives if this is not possible. Let me know if you want me to find some time to discuss.

Hi Ben,
Here is a look at the workflow that completes the "Participation Type (formula)" field in the "Loan Onboarding Tracker 2.0" project.

There are two consecutive steps that result in the field getting filled out:

1. First, the Salesforce integration pulls in the "Participation Loan" field from the Salesforce Opportunity and lands in the "Participation Loan?" Asana field.

2. That data comes over as text, which we need to translate to single-select data, so then we run this Asana rule, below, that converts the "Participation Loan?" text to fill out the "Participation Type (formula)" Asana field. (The "Participation Loan?" field remains hidden, and it's the "Participation Type (formula)" field that's visible on the projects that we care about seeing.)

Hope this is helpful. And we're happy to chat is this process needs revising, thanks

Alissa

Subject: Asana - Salesforce Participation Field logic question

Hi Alissa and Jenna,

I hope you had a good weekend! Reaching out because we noticed a potential issue with one of the fields in the Asana projects Ops developed for CRLA. Specifically, the "Participation Type" field, which is a formula.

I was wondering what the logic being used is to fill the Participation Type field in Asana?

Right now, it looks as if for any loan where there is more than one lender involved, the Participation Type field is listed as "NFF Participant", even when NFF is the lead lender on the loan.

When the "Participation Loan" field is "Yes", and NFF is the lead lender, then the Participation Type field should be "NFF Lead/No Participation".

Let us know if it would be helpful/more efficient to schedule a brief call to discuss in more detail.
